PUBLICATIONS OF THE NORTHERN ROCKY MOUNTAIN FOREST AND RANGE EXPERIMENT STATION

1912 through 1950

Station Paper No. 31

July 1951

Foreword

The most significant reports published by members of the staff of the Northern Rocky Mountain Forest and Range Experiment Station, from its beginning through 1950, are listed in the following pages. To facilitate finding publications by authors, subject matter, and series, three separate lists are given: (1) an index of authors, (2) a classified subject matter list, and (3) a list of station publications by series.

The list of authors is arranged alphabetically. Numbers after an author's name refer to the pages in the subject matter list, in which the complete reference to an author's publications is given.

The classified subject matter list is divided into the following twelve categories:

General Forestry	Page 1	Forest Engineering	Page 31
Forest Botany	" 3	Forest Management	" 31
Silviculture	" 5	Forest Economics	" 35
Forest Protection	" 13	Range Management	" 42
Lumbering	" 25	Water Resource Management	" 49
Forest Technology	" 29	Associated Uses	" 49

For a number of years the station has released reports in various publications series. These series are given in the third list, which is arranged numerically by releases.

In 1920 the station published its first series entitled "Applied Forestry Notes". Since that time and up through 1950, a total of 270 reports have been released in the six station series listed below:

Applied Forestry Notes	1 through 93 (discontinued)
Forest Survey Releases	1 through 21 (discontinued)
Forest Survey Statistical Service	1 through 18 (discontinued)
Station Papers	1 through 25
Research Notes	1 through 85
Miscellaneous Publications	1

The three current series are chiefly different in their length. Shorter manuscripts are published as Research Notes and longer ones as Station Papers. Miscellaneous Publications include handbooks, experimental forest guide books, maps, and other material not classified elsewhere.

Many of the earlier publications have been supplanted by more recent releases; the supply of other publications is exhausted. Those which are available for distribution are marked "A"; those available on a loan basis only are marked "L"; and those which are unavailable, "U". (Many of the latter can be found in libraries and in professional, scientific and other periodicals.
